Take your necessary language placement exams in German, Spanish, Italian, Chinese, Japanese, or Latin. You should take a foreign language placement exam regardless of your current plans for foreign language study; the placement exams are given only once (during orientation) for students. You will not have the opportunity to do so after orientation.

NOTE: All first-year students who have had high school Spanish and plan to take Spanish (at any level) at Colby must take the placement test during orientation, even if you took AP Spanish.

The French placement test was given online in May. If you missed it, please contact Professor Greenspan (arthur.greenspan@colby.edu) and meet in Lovejoy 307 at this time.

If your native language is not English or your foreign language does not have a placement exam listed above, contact Associate Dean of Students Susan McDougal at 207-859-4252 or at smmcdoug@colby.edu.
